ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

Assembling of the National Democratic Convention.

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—The National Democratic Convention assembled to-day in the large and beautiful hall of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, which was decorated with garlands of leaves, State coats of arms, flowers, etc. The delegates were promptly in their places, but it was 12:20 P. M. before the convention was called to order by Hon Augustus Schell, chairman of the National Democratic Committee. Meantime a fine band of music perched in the rear of the chairman's desk, kept the assemblage interested by rendering lively airs.

Schell in calling to order, made a few remarks upon the purposes of this convention, to nominate candidates whose election shall change the government and overthrow corruption. Administrative reform is demanded by the American people. [Applause.] The corruption now existing in our government must be done away with; this duty must be confided to the hands, not of those who now hold the reins of government, but to the Democratic party. The thing to be reformed cannot be reformed by itself. The people are intelligent and sagacious, they know their rights, and will not again confide their interests to the Republican party. He referred to the Democratic party as the hard money party from the beginning. He said it was a trick to try to saddle upon it the existing policy, which is inconsistent with the hard money principle. All the acts authorizing paper money as a legal tender, and the decisions of the supreme court sustaining its constitutionality, were all done during the Republican administration. He referred briefly to its evil results. The remedy is not rapid contraction or increased currency, but the one remedy at this time is the repeal of the resumption act. [Applause.] Do that and give the Democratic party the reins of government, and their policy of economy and sound finance will bring specie resumption speedily and safely. [Applause.] In this Centennial of National Independence, we have met to adopt the means to restore the country to its ancient prosperity. May we not hope now, after 16 years of Republicanism, that the Democratic party may resume its rightful supremacy in the government?

The rules that will govern the convention will insure a good nomination and be exerted to call forth wisdom in making the platform. At the conclusion he nominated Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, for temporary chairman. [Applause.] The nomination was unanimously agreed to.

The Hon. Mr Barnum, of Connecticut and Ransom, of North Carolina, were appointed a committee for the purpose of conducting Mr Watterson to the chair. Watterson being presented was received with applause. He said:

Gentlemen of the Convention—We are called together to determine by our wisdom whether an honest government administered by honest men shall be restored to the American people, or to decide by our folly that it is the destiny of this country to pursue an endless ever revolving circle of partisan passion and corruption, until, with the loss of our material well being we lose the poor man's last, best hope, civil liberty itself. Every citizen of the Republic, be he of the one party, or the other, feels, and has felt for many a day, the depressing influence of what are called hard times. We look about us and see neglected fields and vacant houses. The factory is closed, the furnace door is shut, there are myriads of idle hands. The happy activity of … life is no where to be found. Loyalists fatten whilst honest men starve. Empty the mart and shipping the bay. What has wrought so great a change in the land that under the rule of an intelligent, progressive, constitutional party advanced within half a century from the condition of a bucolic of petty and squalid provincial sovereignties to a … of the … nations of the earth? The … of men must answer, partisan misrule and … The Republicans, my friends are not alone responsible. With them rest the disgraces; with us, the follies. These twin agents of national mischance, working under the miserable rule of contraries, have kept the people—the North and South as well—under, and have supplied … to corruption. They have disturbed values; they have unsettled prices, they have made the whole financial system a cheat and a snare. They have driven the best elements of political society into exile, and have organized charlatanism into a sort of public policy, enabling the rogue to get a cheap advantage of his dupe, and sacrificing every popular interest to the lust of that oligarchy which has become so encrusted with power as to believe itself entitled to rule by the sheer force of its wrong-doing. So much let us set down to the convenient … of war; so much to the long account of damages between North and South. It is for you to say whether the same conflict with the consequences multiplied and magnified shall by any act of … be inaugurated between the East and West. I shall not undertake on an occasion of this kind, and in a presence so imposing, to enhance the familiar … of a … fool … nobody doubts our capacity to make battle among ourselves. Entreating you to direct your energies to the common enemy, I ask indulgence only on my own behalf. You have called me to a place not merely of distinction but of difficulty—to a place which requires the best training of a better man than I am. In taking this place I trust to your confidence and good nature to a heart incapable of an unmanly or unfair act. The work before us should relate to ideas rather than to individuals. It is the issue, not the man, that should engage our attention. We have come here to make the people's—not our fight—for free no less than for honest government; for the reform of the public service and the regeneration of the public morals; for administrative relief from administrative nihilism, embraced in the simple creed of home rule, reduced taxes and a living chance for the South as well as the North—for both the East and the West. If anything comes of our proceeding it must spring from the spirit of aspiration and fellowship which warmed the followers of Andrew Jackson and Silas Wright—of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster—whose political descendants meet to gether on common grounds at least to wrest the government of their fathers from the clutch of rings and robbers, Federal, State and municipal, and who mean to extirpate those wherever they are found, whether they be Republican or Democratic. The principal points of his speech were emphasized by frequent applause. At the conclusion, he introduced the Rev. Mr Martin, who offered a prayer. The chair announced as temporary secretary, Frederick O. Prince, of Massachusetts and T. O. Walker, of Iowa. S. K. Donovan, of Ohio, as assistant secretaries; also, Dan Able, of Missouri, sergeant at arms.

Abbott, of Massachusetts, moved a resolution adopting the rules of the last national convention until otherwise ordered.

Littlejohn inquired if this includes the two thirds rule. [Voices, yes.] If so, all right. [Applause.] The chairman answered—It does. The resolution was adopted.

Smalley of Vermont, offered a resolution to call the States in order for presentation of credentials, adopted.

Wallace, of Pennsylvania, in order to have the Democratic precedents observed, moved to reconsider the resolution just adopted. He argued that the States should name their committees on credentials and permanent organization before any other business was done. He hoped there would be no innovation in past precedents.

Weed, of New York, insisted that the resolution adopted is in accordance with precedent. Under it credentials are received only for reference to the committee on credentials.

Wallace read from the official proceedings of the convention of 1868 to show that the first business was to make committees.

Doolittle, of Wisconsin suggested that there be appointed a temporary secretary. He suggested that E. O. Perrin be appointed. The chair decided the motion out of order. The motion to reconsider was rejected.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll of States for credentials.

Pilney, of Illinois, moved that E. O. Perrin be appointed temporary reading secretary.

Finch, of Iowa, objected. Perrin did not inherit this appointment if he had had it before and the appointment should be left to the committee on organization. The Chair finally decided the motion out of order.

A Minnesota delegate moved the usual resolution to call the roll of States for committees on permanent organization and credentials, adopted.

The roll was called and the committees named.

Carroll, of Tennessee moved that when the convention adjourns it be to five o'clock to-night, and that the committees just named shall then report, adopted.

Smith, of Illinois moved that a committee of one from each State be appointed on the committee on resolutions and that all resolutions relating to the platform be referred to said committee without debate; adopted.

Berdsall made a point of order that there could be no committee on resolutions until after permanent organization. The Chair said the convention had power to decide this question for itself. The roll was called and the committee named. Various resolutions were sent up and referred under the rule without reading any. Some minutes before two St. Louis time the convention took a recess until 5 P. M.

A motion for recess was rejected.

Wood, of New York moved that the chairman of each delegation send to the chair the name of its members of the platform committee. There being no objection, it was so ordered. The chairman stated that delegates from the National Woman's Suffrage Association were present asking a hearing.

[Cries of hear them.] There being no objection the chair announced they would be heard.

Wood of New York and Smalley of Vermont were appointed a committee to escort the ladies to the platform.

The chair announced that a lady had the floor and refused to hear any propositions.

Miss Phoebe W. Couzens of St. Louis, took the platform and addressed the convention with much self possession, but her voice was too weak to be heard many feet distant. She said:

Gentlemen of the Convention—The Centennial anniversary of our national birthday is also happily a Centennial leap year. It is in order, then, to take it, not only to receive proposals from fair women, but also to accept. Now taking advantage of this right and of your courtesy, I, as a delegate with authority from the fair sex, am here not only to reaffirm for them the principles of liberty and equality, but to sue for the hand of those here assembled in National Convention, and the hand, Mr President, must be neither larger than a man's hand. In the good old days of our ancestors it was deemed an unpardonable offense if the leap year privileges accorded to women were not unhesitatingly acquiesced in and he who did not joyfully say yes to the sweet maiden's coy wooing was regarded with supreme contempt, and in the isolation of single miserableness, died ere yet his race was run unwept unsung of women. So then gentlemen if as a party you would live long, be prosperous, and be happy, give heed to the warning from out the gates of paradise—it is not good for man to be alone—and accept for your companion in the political household her who binds all the discordant elements of life into true divine harmony and sweet nature. The better half of James Madison said …

Let it be remembered that it has ever been the pride of America that the rights for which she contended were rights of human nature, and gentlemen, we ask this recognition not as women but as human beings. Our Magna Charta grants equality of rights and to day we sue for this, not by force of might and power, but by the more potent voice of truth and justice, speaking to every thinking man's conscience in tones more persuasive than those which appealed to King John on the field at Runnymede. We cannot assert this right by a resort to the sword—we confess our inability to thunder forth our claim from the cannon's mouth to fire shots that can be heard around the world, but in this grand Centennial year when all others are free, and when our souls too are responding to the music of the utterances of Jefferson, of Hancock, of Adams, and of Patrick Henry, with minds expanding to a realization of their grandeur, with a pulse beating for the freedom they proclaimed, we would fain pluck a live coal from off the altar of our liberties that shall kindle in your souls a zeal for all rights of the individual. Ergo, the universal humanity, such as our fathers had when they thrilled the hearts of the people with the cry that taxation without representation is tyranny, and with burning thoughts and noble utterances they wrote by the camp fires of the revolution that immortal truth that all humanity is created free and equal. Gentlemen, we appeal to your sense of justice and right, using but the grand old truths of our fathers to support our claims and here we rest our case, commending to you, in closing up, the truth that a sense of justice is the sovereign power of the human mind, the most unyielding. It rewards with higher sanction. It punishes with deeper agony than any earthly tribunal. It never slumbers, never dies. It constantly utters and reminds justice by eternal rules of right and equality, and on this eternal foundation stone of right, truth and equality, we stand.

Evening Session.

Evening session called to order at 5:25 P. M.

English, from the committee on credentials, reported there are no contested seats [Applause] and that the states are all represented. A petition was presented for the admission of delegates from the District of Columbia. The Chair said the petition under the rules, goes to the committee on credentials.

A Maryland delegate moved to amend the report of the committee on credentials, so as to admit the District of Columbia delegates—Columbus Alexander and Mr Ball—without a vote.

Clymer moved to amend further, by including the delegates from the Territories. This being accepted by the mover of the original amendment it was adopted, and the report was then adopted.

Hannd, of Indiana, from the committee on permanent organization, reported for permanent president, John A. McClernand of Illinois, also a list of vice presidents and secretaries, among them the following: From California, Col. Jack Hays, vice president; Geo McCornwall, secretary. Nevada, John C. Fall and R. M. Kelly, Colorado, Sam McBride, J. D. Marston; Kansas, Wilson Shannon, D. Donaldson; Nebraska, Alex Beer, Chas. McDonald, Oregon, R. R. Thompson, H. H. Gilfry.

A delegate from Nevada moved to add to the reading secretaries E. O. Perrin, of New York, who was re elected. The significance of this motion lies in the fact that Perrin, who had been reading clerk from the last convention, had been dropped for his opposition to Tilden's nomination.

Gen Fitzhugh Lee of Virginia, and Dorsheimer of New York, were appointed a committee to conduct McClernand to the chair, but they being absent, Manton Marble of New York, and Bock of Virginia, were substituted.

McClernand, being conducted to the platform, addressed the convention.

Gentlemen of the National Democratic Convention—I thank you for the distinguished honor which you have done me in directing me to preside over your deliberations. You are the delegates of the Democracy of the whole Union of 37 states once unnaturally estranged, but now firmer united in one undividable Republic—the heirs of one political family with the same heritage of liberty under equal laws and the heirs of one destiny. Shall we preserve and transmit that great heritage, shall we make that destiny the most glorious in the history of a free people? If your deliberations, fellow Democrats, to day shall be wise; if your perception of the necessities of our time, our country and our politics shall be just and sagacious; if our sympathy shall be quick with the hearts of a great people, then beyond all peradventure we will transmit to our children and our children's children unimpaired this princely heritage, and your's will be a better renown than the renown most prized by the Romans—conditores imperiorum—far greater than the founders of empires are the preservers of Republics. There are no enemies of the Union to-day on this continent, except that administrative centralism which is concentrating at the capital the vital currents which ought to flow out through every part, giving life to the farthest extremities of the body politic, and energy to all its members except that corruption which is the curse that centralism has never failed, I ang'ag', or any land, to entail upon any government. Ten … alien and corruption have imposed upon ten States the rapacious tyranny of carpet bag rule and since the peace have added twenty millions to their debts. They have affected the government of our Southern States and Northern cities with the same disease of extravagance and fraud; they have debauched the Federal government itself and made the names of holders of its high offices and public men our public scandal and open shame. Their record is horrible in capacity, venality, and fraud and the party which has been powerless to tread down and trample under foot its corruptionists with stupendous effrontery is pledging itself to a reform of which it has become incapable. So that party has pledged itself to restore specie payments, while every year taking us farther from specie payments. So it pledged itself to civil service reform and then dropped and mocked its reformers. So it pledged itself to protect American labor, and with its monstrous custom house taxation on over 10,000 articles it has impoverished American labor. A few score of monopolists and a few thousand corruptionists have been enriched; but capital in the hands of those who earned it by industry and saved it by frugality is everywhere distrustful and rusts unused while honest labor goes about the streets begging bread. Is this then the final outcome of a century of Republican self government? Forbid it gracious God! But we have wandered far from the right paths, we must return to the constitutional principles—the frugal expenditures and the administrative purity of the founders of the Republic. This is the first, the most imperious necessity of our day and nation. This is the appeal we have to make to our fellow citizens of all political affiliations. This is the one supreme commanding issue to which all others are inferior, all others trivial. Reform, reform, reform. If you shall recognize this imperious; if you shall guarantee in your platform the successful achievement of this arduous work of national regeneration, if you shall select as standard bearers, leaders true to your pledge, victory in the November contest is already yours. Incarnate the vital issue of reform in your candidates and platform and the States that have honored Douglas and Lincoln, the States that honor Hendricks and Thurman, Hancock and Parker, Bayard and Tilden—these States with all their vast population will rise like the woods at the winds that followed the fleeting Orpheus to follow you to victory.

Belmont of New York rose to read an address. His remarks were very indistinctly heard in the confusion of the hall, but which were understood to have been a sharp criticism of the Republican party and the Administration followed by some suggestions as to the duty of the Democratic leaders whom he characterized as having been too timid in the past, too much disposed to make candidates and platforms to catch the popular votes than to declare and uphold great principles. In conclusion he read a series of resolutions arraigning the Republican party in detail. The resolutions were referred to the committee on resolutions.

Mr Belmont said, the struggle upon which we are entering to day will in its consequences be of as vital importance as that of any Presidential election in which the destinies of the American people have heretofore been at stake. It will decide whether the corrupt and sectional party which by its misrule has caused a prostration of trade and industry more ominous and more wide spread than any this country has ever suffered is to be fastened upon us for four years more or whether the Democratic party will be able to regain their place in the government in order to guide us back to peace, union and prosperity. The Republican leaders reckless, selfish and aggressive as ever, have by their speeches in Congress, by the inflammatory teachings of an unprincipled partisan press, and finally by the platforms of their state and National Conventions, tried to divert the attention of electors from their distrust and from the real issues of the coming campaign in order to escape the just indignation of an outraged people, whose confidence they have so shamefully betrayed. They appeal to sectional and sectarian prejudices in order to sow the seeds of discord between North and South—Protestant and Catholic. In this Centennial year of a nation's rejoicings when the hallowed memories of the past admonish us to draw closer and stronger the bonds of fraternity and union, when we have seen soldiers of South Carolina linked arm in arm at the foot of Bunker Hill with their brethren of Massachusetts, when the veterans of New England adorn with flowers the graves of Confederate soldiers—a tribute from the brave to the brave—the policy of the administration party bent only upon their own selfish ends attempts to stir up the worst passions of human nature and not satisfied with the miseries of to day, are willing to leave to our children an inheritance of suspicion, prejudice and hatred. They played this same game for fair and encouraged by the policy of the leaders of our former conventions, they hope to achieve another victory through our fears which made us resort to expediencies and injurious nominations outside of the Democratic party. Experience has shown the folly of such a policy. For every Republican vote which we gain or hoped to gain we lost ten votes of thousands of our own people. Let the lesson of the past serve as a warning at this juncture. This is a struggle between Democracy, representing union, progress and prosperity and Republicanism, representing sectional strife, religious intolerance and the continuation of financial and industrial prostration. In such a contest victory must be ours, if we adopt a strong and unequivocal platform on all the vital questions which agitate the people and place upon it a national Democrat whose private character and public life, record will infuse that enthusiasm and that confidence into our ranks which only can assure success. The Republicans have once more unfurled the bloody shirt—that political flag with which they hope to capture the hearts of the people. Let us march again under them under the broad banner of the Union—that flag which has never known and will never know defeat either from domestic or foreign foes. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following resolution which with the consent of this convention I move to be referred to the committee on resolutions:

Resolved, That we appeal to the honor and manhood of the American people to begin their second century of American union and independence by trampling under foot and extinguishing forever the smouldering ashes of distrust, rancor and animosity between the two great sections of our common country. We denounce with indignation the calculated malignity with which the leaders of the Republican party have labored to keep alive through eleven years of peace the worst passions of civil war. The Machiavellian motto of the Republican party has been and is, "divide the people and we shall rule them." The Democratic party ever replies, "Unite the people and make them free." We denounce the Republican party on this great issue as a party of false pretences. It is a false pretence to assume the character of a national party and at the same time to exist only as a sectional division. It is a false pretence to assume the name of national party and at the same time to be an obstacle to national unity. It is a false pretence to assume the name of liberal party and at the same time to appeal to the religious prejudices of the people. It is a false pretence to claim this title of a progressive party and at the same time to turn the people back from peace to the future to war in the past.

It being announced that the platform committee would not be ready to report earlier, the convention adjourned till 11 o'clock to morrow morning.

Voorhees after the adjournment, said, I am here with you, fellow Democrats of the United States, for the exalted and patriotic purpose of endeavoring to redeem and wrench our country from the hands of the despoilers and the public plunderers. [Applause.] I am here with you for the purpose of trying to better unite the scattered, shattered, broken bonds of our union by gathering together in one mighty brotherhood, looking in each other's faces, renewing ancient friendship, steadying the column, and turning its head towards victory and glory in the future as we have done in the past. [Applause.] We are entering upon a new century. Portions of the last century were full of glory. The closing years of our last century, however, have had tears and blood commingled with sorrows. The cypress of mourning has been in thousands of households, but with the coming of this new century there comes a new dispensation, the dawn of a revelation of glory such as shall eclipse the past years of the century which has gone by. [Applause.] Standing as I do, one of the humble representatives of the great valley of the Mississippi, and in a central point to invoke union and harmony and a compromise of conflicting opinions in Democratic ranks [Applause] I say there is nothing, my friends in the differences of opinion in the Democratic party which cannot be honorably and easily smoothed, harmoniously adjusted so that when the lines of battle are formed, there shall be no heartburning, no divisions, no collisions of thought. [Applause.] There is no reason why we should not adjust our differences. Standing, as I do, one of the representatives of the great Mississippi valley we appeal to the people of the far East—we say to them, what is for your prosperity is likewise for ours. You all rest upon the prosperity of the agricultural interests of the mighty Mississippi valley! [Applause.] The foundation of commercial glory and greatness is the farmer's plow and the sickle and the rich harvest. We freight your ships, we make your cities prosper. You in turn benefit us in a thousand ways. We underlay and interchange, and bind our interests together when we properly consider it. We appeal to you, men, to give us a living chance in this convention and in this contest, and we will make a glorious return in October for your final charge upon the enemy. [Loud and continued cheers.] I stand in your presence neither arrogant nor suppliant. I stand for absolute justice, willing to concede everything that is just to everybody else, only asking that the same be meted out to ourselves. Let us not be extreme to each other. Let us not seek to be distasteful. Man's talent to be disagreeable to his fellow men is quite sufficient without cultivating it at all. [Applause.] We should cultivate amicability and friendship. I make these remarks to our brethren of the East. We have fought a thousand battles with you for Democracy, and never one against you. Our scars of political conflict are upon our breasts and none upon our backs. [Applause.] To our old time brethren of the South, a word or two to you. I am one of the men surely that needs no apology to look my Southern brethren in the eye and expect him to believe that I speak to him with no forked tongue. [Cheers.] No political battle was ever so hot—the clouds of obloquy and storm, and danger never fall so low or black over the heads of the Democrats with whom I had worked and toiled for years as to deter us from abiding by all the constitutional rights and guarantees of our oppressed Southern brethren. [Loud cheers.] I ask my Southern brethren who know me and whom I do not, in this hour of national counsel, this hour of national preparation for the great conflict with the pirate flag of the bloody shirt arrayed against you—men, do not, in this hour, leave us helpless to be scalped and murdered upon the field of battle. We have no personal animosities to gratify, we have no personal aims to subserve. If there is one man who can get more votes than another, were my own brother a candidate I would prefer that other man. The times are too serious; the issues too mighty to allow a personal thought to intervene at this time. In the last 12 years we in the northwest have attacked the enemies' lines under the lead of the gallant Democracy of New York. If it has to be again, we will dress in parade and win. If it is a forlorn hope, we will fight like men. I say there are no heartburns, no animosities to gratify. Men of this convention it was no purpose of mine to speak here. I feel like apologizing for it; but you have sent me here. I did not desire to speak, but I belong to that class of men who cannot speak and say nothing. I must say something. [Applause.] and what I say is the utterance of a sincere heart in the council of tried, cherished and beloved friends. Let us purify our hearts for this great work that is before us. Let us look narrowly to our duties and when the sun goes down upon a finished work after this Convention I pray Almighty God that it may be so ordered that in November our country will stand redeemed, disenthralled and re enfranchised in all the rights of a free people from the tyrannical bond that has crushed and oppressed us so long. That is my prayer. [Cheers.] My fellow citizens of the Convention, thanking you with a grateful heart over and over again, I will not detain you any longer. [Go on.] It would be unseemly and improper to hold this body of men any longer together, and thanking you with a heart full of gratitude, for this demonstration, I take my leave. [Loud and continued applause.]

Several different delegates have sent to the platform committee resolutions against Chinese immigration varying in phrase and force. There is no doubt from informal expressions in the committee that the plank will be incorporated. Judge Hager proposed a resolution which declares specifically against the importation of Mongolian women for immoral purposes, and men under servile labor contracts, and invokes the whole power of the Government for its suppression.

The Situation at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—The political caldron is at boiling heat. The crowd here is less than at Cincinnati, but still the attendance is the largest ever seen at a Democratic convention. The contest between rival candidates is spirited, but the only bitterness apparent is between the Tilden men and those opposed to him regardless of predilection in favor of other candidates. The Tilden workers are compact, energetic and determined, but without the strong personal enthusiasm evinced by the supporters of Blaine at Cincinnati; still they are confident of success, on the assumption that when Tilden shows his majority he will soon be conceded the nomination. It is undeniable that many Northwestern delegates who were Tilden men when elected have since become convinced that their constituents are opposed to his nomination. Many such yesterday were disposed to transfer their votes to other candidates, but Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Nebraska agreed somewhat in finally to cast their sixty votes together. This tends to strengthen Tilden materially where he was in danger of weakening. His friends claim from 400 to 450 on the first ballot. If he can hold this his chances of nomination by the second or third ballot are good. There are significant evidences that his opponents are discouraged. Pennsylvania's action in resolving to vote as a unit for Hancock makes it a positive fact that in the contest he will start with nearly 100 votes. He is no longer a reserve candidate, and if Tilden fails during three ballots, the soldier's chances will materially improve. Hendricks' friends are active and undismayed. They are making a dignified and honorable canvass. The mustering friends of Thurman, Allen and Bayard are watching their chances, and in the meantime doing little beyond holding votes away from the strongest. Although Hendricks' friends now refuse to consider the second place for him, the probabilities are he will be nominated vice president if Tilden wins first place.

To day's proceedings showed a remarkable lack of enthusiasm. The contrast with the Cincinnati convention in this respect is most striking. Evidently its members have little hope of success, or they would receive with more marked demonstrations the cast iron predictions of victory which scarcely elicited a feeble cheer. The opening prayer was laughably inconsistent with Watterson's address, for it offered special thanks for national prosperity, announced busy factories, furnaces, abundant demand for labor at remunerative rates, all of which Watterson had denied because of the Republican ascendency. The Tilden men are radiantly confident of securing his nomination and are hurrying proceedings to reach balloting before the situation changes. His opponents on the other hand do not give up the fight, and still hope to combine for his defeat.

The best judgment in review of the day's work is that Tilden's strength has waned somewhat.

Good Account of California Riflemen.

The delegation from the San Francisco Schutzen Verein, sent to Philadelphia a few weeks since, are giving a good account of themselves. A dispatch received to-day announces that yesterday the first match for money prizes was contested. The first prize was won by Adolph Strecker, second by Strueby, fourth by Rahwyler, all of San Francisco. The shooting for goblets was as follows: Second prize won by W. Ehrenpfort, fourth by Phil. Jacoby, and eleventh by Koenig, all of San Francisco.

The Hay Exchange this morning resolved that the members of this exchange should close their places of business from Saturday evening until Wednesday morning. The wholesale grocers have taken similar action. The wholesale houses in other lines of trade will follow suit.

…th's Defalcation.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—Several months ago Charles H. Barth, a clerk in the quartermaster's department, was discovered to be a defaulter, and was arrested, but in a few hours managed to escape, and has not since been heard from. A court of inquiry was ordered soon after the discovery, which has since been in session from time to time, and has taken an immense amount of testimony bearing on Barth's frauds, also his mode of conducting the business of the quartermaster's department on this coast. The court yesterday concluded its labors and adjourned for a few days, when it will probably render its decision with closed doors. The result of its deliberations will not be known until it shall have been acted upon by the commanding general. Barth's defalcation is reported to amount to about $100,000.

Boy Drowned.

Edward Hartshorne, 17 years of age, was drowned this morning in a pool of water near the San Jose railroad track and Twenty-Eighth street. A party of boys were enjoying a swim, when one of the number became confused and cried out he was sinking. Young Hartshorne swam to his rescue and seized him about the waist. In the struggle both went down, and the other lad succeeded in getting on shore, but Hartshorne sunk before assistance could reach him.

Smallpox.

This morning an old man who took a room a few days ago in a small rear building on one of the narrow cross-streets south of Market, was found to have died of smallpox, neglected and alone. The health officer was notified and the body hurriedly removed for interment. Four additional cases were reported this morning. Some of them are of a very malignant type.

The weather is cooler to-day, with a stiff breeze.

Anti-Coolie Proceedings.

The central anti-coolie union, at its meeting last night, decided to have a grand torchlight procession on the evening of July 12th, comprising all nationalities, except the Chinese, whether belonging to the anti-coolie clubs or not. A motion was carried to prepare a petition to Congress, to be circulated in every town on the Pacific coast, asking Congress to take some action at once, and a committee appointed to prepare the petition.

Fire Crackers Forbidden.

The Supervisors last night passed an order forbidding the discharging of fire crackers in the city during the coming holidays. This measure was due to the energetic protest of the underwriters against removing the customary safeguards against fire and the fact that within the last few days two or three small fires have been started by the explosion of fire crackers.

Spanish Outrage.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—The schooner Fanny Hare, owned by Chas. Hare, of this city, sailed hence in January last for Manila, and put in at Honolulu and sold a portion of her cargo on account of the vessel being too deeply loaded. On her arrival at Manila, the Spanish authorities imposed a fine of $134,000 on the vessel and cargo for informality in the manifest and technical violation of Spanish regulations. The informality consisted in the manifest not being certified to by the Spanish consul here, and also that the certificate of the Spanish consul at Manila was not obtained, showing the partial discharge of cargo there. A letter received from the consignees at Manila, states they hope to compromise the matter by the payment of a nominal fine. Mr Hare has telegraphed to Senator Sargent, asking him to call the attention of government to the matter. The Spanish authorities seem to have acted simply in accordance with the maritime laws of Spain in the course they pursued.

Sand was placed on the track before the train would move forward.

AN APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

GRANT COUNTY, June, 1876.

We, the undersigned citizens and taxpayers of Grant county, Oregon, hereby make this last appeal to those in authority to keep the Indians from amongst us. We are, and have been, in dread of their yearly visits and incursions, year after year continuously, ever since the Snakes, or Piutes, were subdued and placed on reservations. It may be asked by those not familiar with the subject what they have done that makes us dread them. We will not pretend to enumerate all the bad acts that they have committed, but will give a few only as samples, and every statement of fact here made can be abundantly proven. They have, time and again, killed cattle, stolen horses, burned grass and timber, thereby endangering the property of every citizen of every kind that is of a quality that could be destroyed by fire. This is especially true in all new settlements where the grass is thick and tall and has not been much grazed. They have been known in one instance at least, to watch a house until the head of the family went away some distance and then menaced his wife with violence until she was almost insane from fright. Any one wishing for more information as to what Indians have done that is wrong, during the last seven years, are referred to an article published in the WEEKLY OREGONIAN of April 15th last, under the head of "A Nuisance that ought to be Abated." Knowing from past experience the utter uselessness of appealing to the Indian agents we hereby appeal to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, to see that this great cause of anxiety and … be removed and kept from amongst us.

The delegates at St. Louis, according to telegraphic reports, are not very sanguine of victory in the coming contest. They are said to be dull and spiritless, and to show none of that eager enthusiasm which so strongly characterized the Republicans at Cincinnati. The fact is they feel defeat in their bones. The nomination of Hayes and Wheeler is so acceptable to the people and the candidates themselves are so unobjectionable, that the Democrats have in a measure lost hope. Mr. Tilden will probably be nominated, as he leads all the other candidates a great way. But, as in the case of Mr. Blaine, the strongest man at the start does not always win. Still, there are more chances in favor of Mr. Tilden's nomination by this convention than there were for Mr. Blaine's nomination by the convention at Cincinnati.

A COSTLY BUT USELESS BUILDING.—So badly is the New York custom house—costing over twelve millions designed, that the sanitary inspectors can scarcely suggest a plan by which it might be properly ventilated. WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1876.

HISTORICAL ERROR CORRECTED.

Our telegraphic columns in yesterday morning's paper contained an inaccuracy concerning the coming Centennial celebration of the 4th of July that it would be well to correct, inasmuch as it involves a part of our national history. The Philadelphia telegram says: "The exercises will commence immediately after the culmination of the review, about 10 o'clock, and will be initiated by the Right Rev. Bishop Simpson, ecclesiastical successor of the chaplain of the Continental Congress." How Bishop Simpson becomes the ecclesiastical successor of Bishop White, one of the first chaplains of the American Congress and the first bishop of the Episcopal Church in Pennsylvania, would puzzle even one of those Philadelphia lawyers.

The telegram should have read: "Bishop Stevens," who as bishop of the Episcopal Church in Pennsylvania, is the "ecclesiastical successor" of Bishop White, and on this account has been chosen to conduct the religious services on the great Centennial day. The Rev. Mr. Duffield, a Presbyterian clergyman, was appointed chaplain to Congress at the same time with Dr. White. The appointment was made, according to the bishop's own account, in Sept., 1877, while the British army was marching on to Philadelphia, of which they took possession soon afterwards. "At this eventful crisis," he says, "I received notice that Congress, which had fled to Yorktown, had chosen me their chaplain. Nothing could have induced me to accept the appointment at such a time, even had the emolument been an object, as it was not, but the determination to be consistent in my principles and in the part taken. Under this impression, I divided my time between Congress and my family, which the double chaplaincy permitted, until the evacuation of the city in the following June. My acceptance of the chaplainship was a few days before the arrival of the intelligence of the capture of Gen. Burgoyne, which tended to a revival from the general depression occasioned by the capture of Philadelphia, and by the advance of an army on the frontier of New York,—the success of which would have severed the Eastern States from the Southern." While officiating as chaplain, Dr. White had opportunities of observing many tokens of the difficulties under which Congress labored in procuring the means of carrying on the war, and the very reduced state of their finances at some periods. The two following facts, related by himself, are striking proofs of the destitution of funds and the very low state of their credit. On one occasion, going into the chamber of Congress to perform his duty as chaplain, he remarked to one of the members: "You have been treating yourselves, I perceive, to new inkstands." "Yes," was the reply, "and private credit had to be pledged for the payment." At another time, observing that the clerks had removed from their usual room, and inquiring the cause, he was told that there was no wood to make a fire there, nor money to buy it. He continued chaplain until Congress removed to New York. When, after the adoption of the existing Constitution, Congress returned to Philadelphia, Bishop White was again chosen one of their chaplains, and continued to be so chosen at each successive Congress, by the Senate, until the removal of the seat of government in the year 1801.

These will be considered interesting particulars by those of our readers who take notice of historical matters—as many must do at these Centennial times—and that it would not be amiss to show who the "Ecclesiastical successor of the Chaplain of the Continental Congress" was.

MRS. A. T. STEWART'S CHARITIES.

Shortly after the decease of Mr. Stewart, when it became known that he had made no charitable bequests, a great deal was said about what was called his selfishness and inhumanity. That Mr. Stewart had the right to make any disposition he liked of his fortune—to bestow it in charity or give it intact to his wife seemed to be overlooked by his critics, who, apparently, would have had him consult them as to its disposal. It was scarcely noticed at the time that Mr. Stewart, in almost so many words, left it to his wife to distribute such portion of his estate as she thought proper to whomsoever she thought worthy to receive it. This Mrs Stewart has since been doing. She is no doubt gladly carrying out the wishes of her husband as expressed, or intimated, during his life time. Mr. Stewart had devoted his whole time and attention to the acquiring of wealth. As he hinted, he probably was not sufficiently well acquainted with the needs of the various charitable and other public institutions of the country to give to them judiciously, and he wisely left the agreeable duty to his wife.

Or there may have been another and a nobler reason: Who knows what motive led him to deny himself the title of benefactor of his countrymen, which he might have secured by writing a few more lines in his will? Who can say that, knowing the benevolence, the sympathy and magnanimity of his wife, he did not know she would worthily bestow the wealth he would bequeath her, relieve the wants of the needy, and contribute to the efficiency of charitable institutions, and thus earn for herself the praise and gratitude that might have been his? Perhaps the money-getting merchant of Broadway was less known and understood than even those who knew him best suspected. Such self-denial would be strange in these practical days and more suitable to the bygone days of chivalry. But because it is strange, it is not impossible—scarcely improbable—and the world, quick to believe strange, evil things, can afford to be slow in disbelieving a strange good thing once in awhile.

But, true or not, Mrs. Stewart is using her wealth with a liberal hand, as the following extract from the New York Herald will show. The Herald says:

> Mrs. Cornelia Stewart has been for some days engaged, with the assistance of Judge Hilton, in examining a list of the most worthy charitable institutions of this city, with a view to carrying out the expressed wishes of her late husband, Alexander T. Stewart. At this season of the year, when wealthy families are preparing to go to Europe or the watering places, the majority of these institutions find themselves sadly in need of money, and very often in arrears, so much so that they will gladly welcome assistance so cordially tendered. The families leaving for the country or for Europe do not find it so very convenient to make donations at this time of the year, and Judge Hilton, without solicitation in most cases, has made, by Mrs. Stewart's wishes, the following donations to charitable and other institutions:

The list, which we omit, includes the names of fifty-one charitable institutions, of various sects and denominations, to which Mrs. Stewart has given nearly $75,000. Besides these donations, Judge Hilton stated that there were many other charitable societies in the city, whose character, if proved to be thoroughly deserving, would receive speedy attention from Mrs. Stewart.

POLITICAL SITUATION IN BELGIUM.

The political situation in Belgium is by no means pleasing to the rulers thereof. The trouble grows out of the fact that the kingdom is composed of the two States of Belgium and Holland—the one Catholic and the other Protestant in faith. Holland, though the weaker numerically, got possession of the government and undertook to manage the education of the people, including that of the priests. This the Catholics of Belgium resolutely opposed, and much trouble arose, which was settled in 1872 by a concordat between the King, who was a Protestant, and the Pope. The trouble again broke out and popular excitement again rose high. Again the troubles were temporarily settled; but they did not long remain so. Year after year at election time and in the legislature the struggle between the Liberals, or Protestants, and the Catholics was renewed.

In 1857 the question of the administration of public charities became a bone of contention between the Liberals and the Roman Catholics, and a bill was passed abolishing the existing law on the subject, which since 1830 had vested the administration in the secular power. The passage of the bill aroused such a commotion, however, that it was withdrawn and the ministers resigned. The new elections went largely Liberal, and another Liberal Ministry was formed. The next election in 1864, continued the Liberal majority. In 1870 the Liberal party, after having been in power thirteen years, was overthrown by a combination of the Catholics with the Radicals or Progressionists, and a few of the Liberals who had become dissatisfied with the action of the government in certain reforms. The Baron D'Anethan formed a Catholic Cabinet, and at a new election in 1870 they obtained a majority in both Houses. The Premier still further increased the power of the Ultramontanes by the gerrymandering process, which so inflamed the Liberals that an outbreak occurred, resulting in the dismissal of the Ministry by the King, and the formation of a new Ministry under M. De Theux. In the elections of 1872 the Liberals gained somewhat, and still further reduced the Ultramontane majorities last year, which was followed by popular outbreaks very similar to those now occurring. The elections this year, while they have slightly reduced the number of Catholic deputies, have not disturbed the majority, so that it is tantamount to a victory for the Catholic Ministry, a fact which sufficiently accounts for the disturbances now prevailing in Antwerp, Ghent, and other places. They will, of course, be speedily suppressed, as they were last year, and then Belgium will be quiet—until the next election.

AN ORDINANCE MAKING AN APPROPRIATION out of the General Fund for expenses of the Centennial Celebration.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. The sum of four thousand six hundred dollars is hereby appropriated out of the General Fund and placed at the disposal of the Committee appointed March 1, 1876, to provide for expenses of the Centennial Exhibition in this city during the first week in July, 1876.

Passed the Common Council June 26, 1876.
W. S. CALDWELL,
Auditor and Clerk.
Approved June 27, 1876.
J. A. CHAPMAN,
Mayor.

NEW TO-DAY.

Breakfast! Dinner! Supper!
CENTENNIAL LUNCH.

Meals will be served in the Basement of the Taylor St. M. E. Church, on the 4th and 5th of July, from 7 A. M. to 6 P. M.

The Ladies of the Church have the matter in hand and we can assure the public that no second hand hash will be served, but every dish will bear the imprint of John Wesley, and the approval of Bishop Peck and Bro. Bentley. The tables will be supplied with the best the market affords, prepared by experienced cooks, and Portland's fairest daughters will serve it. No straight laced centennarian waiters around the shop, but everybody, his wife and his sweetheart will eat, drink and be merry.

So, come right along, and bring a beaming countenance and a good appetite with you, and if we fail to make a profit off you at 30 cents per meal, we hope to make it up in the general average.

Editors throughout the State will please give this notice in their columns, in return for which we propose to do the fair thing by them.

By order of COMMITTEE.

FRUIT { SAVE YOUR } FRUIT

BUY A "PLUMMER"
FAMILY DRYER.

WE ARE NOW RECEIVING A LARGE NUMber of orders for these Dryers. We manufacture six different sizes of the Circular kind and two of the new Upright kind, patented Jan 18 1876. For $200 we guarantee to do one fourth as much work as a $2,000 Alden Dryer; and for $600 we guaranteed to do as much as any Alden Dryer in this State. We also guarantee to do as good work as the Alden, as our Fruit has been thoroughly tested and pronounced No. 1, selling readily in this market at as good figures as the Alden. Now, if you let your fruit rot this year it is your own fault, as the price is within the reach of all.

Send in your orders immediately, as the season is upon us and we will soon have the golden harvest and rebuke this Alden monopoly, and buy Dryers manufactured in your own State, where you can see the parties who manufacture them.

Valuable Patents for Fruit Drying
FOR SALE.

THE SUBSCRIBER WILL SELL THE SOLE AND exclusive right to make, use and vend in the States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains, the machinery and process for evaporating fruits, vegetables and meats, secured by the several United States patents granted to him.

The Evaporators made and sold by the Alden Company are direct infringements on these Patents, which cover specifically the upward or downward motion of close trays, with or against the current of hot air.

Unquestionable proof of the validity of these patents and of the Alden infringement will be furnished, and the purchaser guaranteed against the Alden Company and all others.

MAIL ROBBERY CASE.

TRIAL IN U S DISTRICT COURT, DEADY J. OF MILTON SHEPARDSON FOR ROBBING THE MAILS

Seventh Day.

Court convened at 9 A. M.

FRANK TOMPKINS

Was recalled and asked the question "State to the jury what Maupin said to you and what you said to Maupin at the time of your arrest" Question was objected to by counsel for defense argued and objection sustained by the court

J W CUSICK

Was called and testified I reside in Wasco county have lived there for six years know Tompkins I was present at Grater's when Tompkins was arrested and heard the conversation which took place at that time

Question—Were you present when the arrest was made and did you hear the conversation which took place? Witness—Yes State what that conversation was? Question objected to argued and objection sustained by the court Tompkins did not ask Maupin when arrested 'Have you got Hanson and White?' I was a witness at Tompkins' trial I know John Durbin

Question—At the time of the other trial did not Mr Durbin say to you in this city that he (Durbin) was an old man, that you were a young man, that he would like to give you some advice that he had heard you were going to testify to certain things in the case that you had better not swear to anything positively in Tompkins favor that when asked these questions you had better answer and say that you did not remember or that you were not positive that the people were against Tompkins, and they would be down on you? Witness stated that Mr Durbin had said substantially the same to him

Cross examination—The conversation spoken of, took place at the corner of the block on which the other court building stands I was standing at the corner when Mr Durbin crossed over to me, when the conversation took place Mr Durbin introduced the conversation [Witness here repeats the question given as above] I know Tompkins am intimate with him, he was one of my neighbors am not more friendly toward him than any other neighbor my family was stopping at Tompkins' house at the time of the arrest I left them there while I went over with Tompkins to Grater's I was under indictment in Wasco county It was not for a felony I was under indictment for assault and battery

Q—Were you not indicted for assault with a deadly weapon? Well that is what they called it

Q—Was you not indicted for shooting at a man—shooting a man? Witness—Yes I was assaulted and defended myself the jury was out only a few minutes when they returned with a verdict of acquittal when on the witness stand during the other trial, I answered that I was present at the time of the arrest, and said that I did not hear Tompkins ask if they had got Hanson and White, if it had been said I think I would have heard it, heard all that was said at the time did say during other trial that I heard all the conversation which took place so stated in my testimony, do say now that I did not hear Tompkins use such language

Here the government rested the case

The court stated that as there was a great deal of ground to traverse in the argument of the case he would allow six hours for each side

J C Moreland then began the argument of the case, first adverting to some law points involved in it and devoting about an hour and a half to the discussion of the evidence before the jury

At the conclusion of Mr Moreland's argument the court took the usual recess till one o clock

Afternoon.

The court sat at the hour and Geo H Durham, of counsel for defendant, proceeded to address the court at length upon the law points, arguing the question of the statute of limitation as applicable in the case, and the variance between the allegations in the indictment and the proof as to the ownership of the packets, letters, etc alleged to have been stolen Mr. Durham also made extended remarks to the jury upon the facts brought out in the testimony for the prosecution and defense He was followed by H Y. Thompson, also of defendant's counsel who occupied the time of the court and jury in the argument of the law and facts in the case, until half past five o'clock, at which hour the court adjourned until 9 A M to morrow

SEATTLE ITEMS.

Our correspondent at Seattle sends the following items under date of 24th June

After a long time it has been ascertained by the city fathers that a fire engine suitable for present use can be purchased in Sacramento, and no time will be lost in bringing it to Seattle. There has never been a "real" fire in Seattle up to the present time, nor have we ever had a fire engine Some of the "old timers" say that whenever that engine is housed in this city they expect to see Seattle reduced to ashes The engine is coming notwithstanding

A M Pringle died in Seattle on the 21st inst He was well known in Salem and has relatives living in that place He came to Seattle a number of years ago Last fall he returned to Oregon, his health being very poor Failing to get the relief he desired he came back here two months since He was a good man, honest faithful and always a Christian, and died regretted by many friends A wife and two children survive him

The academic year 1875 6 for the Territorial University under the conduct of Rev G F Whitworth, closes next week During the year past this institution has fully sustained the high reputation it has ever enjoyed for thorough and full courses of learning It is in a flourishing condition and is an institution of no small gratification to the people of Seattle Prof Thadeus Hanford who for the past year has occupied the position of Professor of Mathematics and languages retires to occupy a position upon the editorial staff of the daily morning Intelligencer, the publication of which journal was commenced by David Higgins on the 5th inst

And another firm want it known that they too are prepared to wait upon their friends upon "high land" We refer to Fishel & Roberts, whose store is widely known throughout Oregon Call

And still another is Barnes, whose place, Central Market is free from water Plenty of coffee

HAIR RESTORED.

If any who are skeptical of the ability of Mrs S Lord to produce a crop of new hair in all stages of baldness will call or write to her at her rooms in National Bank building Portland she will refer them to several prominent Portland gentlemen who three months since placed themselves under her treatment and are now in possession of a crop of new fine hair which is rapidly increasing in strength and vigor Itching of the scalp and falling hair checked readily Preparations sent to all parts of Oregon and Washington

Popular—the 'golden thread' cigar

Mr Jason Royal First street, between Yamhill and Taylor, has opened a well assorted stock of ladies gentleman's and children's shoes to which he invites the attention of our citizens His aim is to provide the best at the very lowest price Call and see his new stock

If you have no spare cash to invest in tickets to the Philadelphia Centennial stay at home and enjoy your own! You can see the sights and buy clothing equally as cheap at John's Emporium First and Morrison streets He keeps his stock full and of the best

W L Adams M D A M [illegible] D corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic cases of all kinds at a low price by medicated electric lighting cream baths and by combining the [illegible] [illegible] which he [illegible] improved [illegible] mixed with a little common sense His treatment is [illegible] entirely original and works admirably [illegible] as his numerous patients will attest [illegible] always in the [illegible] to assist [illegible] women

VANCOUVER AFFAIRS.

Our regular correspondent at Vancouver under date of the 27th inst, writes:

The fruit prospects are good throughout this county

Business rather quiet in the land office at this place

The fishermen in this region, are doing well, and fish are plenty.

Telegraph operator very busy fixing up the lines as the water recedes

The Oregonian is indispensable to our city as a source of information

Columbia river at this place is falling as rapidly as could be expected

The farmers along the river are expecting to put in their potato crops soon

Perhaps no part of the world is better adapted to fruit growing than this county

Match game to day between the Pioneers of Portland and the Spartans of this city

No place to be found on this coast that is more healthy than the city of Vancouver

It is thought that hay will be abundant this year as the grass is extra good in this county

This city and county are to be well represented at the Centennial in Portland on the Fourth

Whilst this county is being well settled up there is still room for those who are in search of homes

In 1840 the river at this point was over four feet higher than at this time So say some of the old settlers

The Welcome broke down six miles above Vancouver to day The Grace takes her place at noon to day

Mr Durham and wife Mrs Patten and Botsford of Portland spent a few days in this vicinity last week

The telegraph poles have been swept away some three miles below this place for a distance of one half mile

Mr Durgin's cheese factory east of this place is in a flourishing condition as he has not been interfered with by high water

The farmers along the Columbia have lost most of their fences which will involve quite an expense to rebuild and prepare for farming again

Vancouver as a town site is well located in view of the floods, as we find about 90 per cent of the city out of water at its highest notch

The Columbia river, sweeping along the front of this county, gives quite an advantage to those engaged in the dairy business as well as the farmers

The officers at Fort Vancouver, in the various departments, keep the garrison in fine trim which adds greatly to the appearance as well as the health of the place

The water company of this city is fortunate in being able to furnish the citizens with the purest and best water in the world which is brought into this place from a series of large springs

The band of the 21st infantry, Fort Vancouver, will be well prepared as we think, for the coming Centennial, as Mr Hubner is taking special pains as leader of the band, to make his music worthy of the occasion

An Awkward Pause.—A young gentleman undertook to relate a circumstance one Sunday evening in the presence of some young ladies He commenced as follows

'A lady friend and myself last Sunday evening went to Bed—'

With a sudden spring the old lady bounced him out of the house The next day the old gentleman met him in the street and asked him for an apology

'I was about to say' commenced the young man, that a lady friend and myself went to Bed—" when a thrust from the old man's cane started him back several feet upon which he exclaimed at the top of his voice—

'A lady friend and myself went to Bedford Street Church, you old fool!'

One Honored Mother-in-Law.—When Cherry creek was at its highest, the other night, and the denizens of the bottom on the west side were removing their household goods and gods away from the encroaching flood, a party of firemen found a colored man in a state of extreme agitation and apprehension "Why don't you move?" asked an ex assistant chief of the department "Cause boss my ole mudder-in-law, who is over one hundred and fo' years ole, is in dere sick abed" The old centenarian is both blind and deaf Her name is Hannah Lansey—Denver News

Refreshments Ordered.—We had an Irish ball at the hotel, and the girls and boys were all there Supper was announced at sharp 12 o clock Miss Grady the belle of the evening from Paterson was approached by one of the beaux with the question "What'll yez hev for supper?" "Sure, it's quail on toast and sum fried oysthers I'll have" No, ye'll not either Ye'll take bane soup like the resth, or ye'll rise out of that and give your sate to Mary Ann That's what ye'll do

Indianapolis commission merchants are shipping two car loads of live poultry per day to Philadelphia

Lyon's Kathairon makes beautiful, glossy luxuriant hair prevents its falling out or turning gray It has stood the test of 40 years. Is charmingly perfumed, and has no rival

POND'S EXTRACT.—Never have we heard, or heard of even a single instance of dissatisfaction This we ascribe to the care that has always been taken to claim no more for the Remedy than it would certainly perform

On the other hand new facts are being elicited of its curative virtues in new directions These new facts are received in numerous letters we have received volunteered by a host of correspondents professional and lay who have been prompted by their surprise and gratitude they have experienced or witnessed from the use of Pond's Extract

Toothache proceeds from ague in the face operating upon the exposed nerve of a decayed tooth Rub the gum thoroughly with the finger wet with Johnson's Anodyne Liniment bend the face well and lay a flannel wet with the liniment on the face and put a little of the liniment into the cavity of the tooth on cotton

OREGON.

Salem has an own cousin to the Republican candidate for Vice President He is county treasurer elect of Marion county

The recent hot weather in Eastern Oregon is said to have been severe on the growing crops, and the change to slightly cooler atmosphere was very welcome.

The circuit court for Marion county, which has been in session for two weeks past adjourned last Saturday evening until the 2d Monday in July, the 10th, at 1 30 P M at which time it is thought the docket for the term will be disposed of

The trustees of Willamette University, at a meeting held last Saturday elected for the ensuing year the old board of professors and teachers with the addition of Miss Emily Shattuck of Portland who was elected preceptress of modern languages

The sheep growers in Ochoco valley are very much discouraged The wool clip from many flocks is made to average short owing to the diseases among the sheep, known as the scab although every effort is made to cure after shearing by dipping It seems that the climate of Ochoco and Crooked river country generally is unfavorable for a permanent cure.

The Democrat says "The Ochoco gold mines are now being worked or rather the cleaning up process is going on the water is failing James H Douthitt is working four hands in his mine after sluicing down for some time and is now taking up the gold from boxes and bedrock He seems to feel considerable encouragement with the result so far and the indications present the hope that his effort to develop the mines will more than pay his expenses this year and next season be enabled to use more economy in working them will insure a large profit

Dr J R Soule says the Mercury who has but recently come to our State and has located at Dixie Polk county, met with quite a serious accident Monday, while crossing the river at Champoeg, Marion county When near the middle of the river the boat commenced sinking and careened over to one side tipping the horses and buggy which the Doctor was driving, out into the river The Doctor went under with his buggy and on coming to the surface, he succeeded in cutting his team loose from the buggy, but they becoming entangled in the harness, he found it impossible to save them and divesting himself of a portion of his clothing he struck out for the shore which he finally reached after a long struggle and nearly exhausted, the point where he landed being a mile and a quarter below where he started The ferryman the only other person on the boat at the time caught to the ferry rope and succeeded in getting ashore by means of it but after a protracted struggle Dr Soule's loss in horses buggy medicines and surgical instruments he estimates at $900

An Ochoco letter to the Albany Democrat says the pasturage in that part of Eastern Oregon is better than for years past, owing to unusual seasonable rains. The cattle look very fine, and now there are to be had excellent beeves. The need of money was timely relieved by Mr Sharp of the firm of Paxton & Sharp of Omaha, who fortunately dropped on that section of country and purchased thirteen hundred head of steers, paying $15 for three year olds and $20 for fours and up generally, leaving $25 000 or more, introducing a new order of payment by checks on the First National Bank of Portland which the stock holders felt shy of taking at first being so far from Portland or telegraph communication (120 to 220 miles), but the gentlemanly course of Mr Sharp and his business character, started him in, and his checks were all honored and he left the country on the 8 h inst with as fine a drove as ever went out of any State He takes them to their ranch opposite Ash Hollow on the Platte river, near the U P R R by way of Harney Malheur coming out at Fort Hall, under Jo Reed, their irrepressible boss driver

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE.

600,000 Acres in

EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO Grant and Baker counties, and are offered for sale in such sized tracts not less than 160 [illegible] as purchasers may desire Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and others seeking homes and low priced land to acquire both on the most reasonable terms These lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutritious grass covers the uplands, affording the best of pasturage, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay Living springs and streams water the lands in various directions. The uplands, or rolling [illegible] can be put into crops with the most satisfactory return. Fruit, particularly peaches, plums, grapes, apples, pears and cherries, as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance The Climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for traffic; the mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining, and various other pursuits

Terms, $1 25 per acre and upwards, according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent on deferred payments.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1876.

WILLIAM A. WHEELER

[From the New York Times.]

Congressman William A. Wheeler, who has been nominated for the office of Vice President, is the Representative in Congress from the nineteenth district of this State, and from his training and experience in public life he is well fitted for the office. He has been for over a quarter of a century engaged in pursuits which eminently qualify him for the high office to which he has been nominated. He has been, since the death of the Whig party, a consistent Republican, and his experience as a State legislator and a member of Congress for five terms is a sufficient guarantee of his fitness for the position. In this State, and especially in his own county of Franklin, his character stands very high, and in his capacity of chairman of the Congressional committee which went to New Orleans in the winter of 1874 to settle the Louisiana difficulties, he showed considerable executive ability and sound sense, which did much to bring about a peaceable settlement of the questions then at issue between the opposing factions. Mr. Wheeler was born in Malone, Franklin county, in this State, June 30, 1819, and is consequently in his 57th year. He received a common school and academic education in his native town, and subsequently entered the University of Vermont, which he left in the year 1842 without graduating. He next studied law, and having been called to the bar, he commenced the practice of his profession in his native county with considerable success. He showed marked ability in his profession, and in a few years was offered the nomination of district attorney by the Democrats of Franklin county. He accepted the nomination and was elected. He discharged the duties of his office in an able and impartial manner, and at the expiration of his term of office he was requested to become a candidate for the assembly in the Whig interest. Mr. Wheeler threw himself into the contest warmly and was elected. He only served one term, however, and at its close gave up for a time public life to business pursuits. He became cashier of the bank in his native town, and for fourteen years remained connected with it, displaying judicious judgment in all his transactions, and winning the [illegible] and confidence of all who had business relations with him. He also became interested in railroads, and was elected president of the Northern New York railroad, which position he held for eleven years. At the death of the old Whig party Mr. Wheeler became a Republican, and in the year 1858 he was elected to the State Senate, of which he was made temporary president, a distinguished mark of the confidence in which he was held by the Republican party, who then for the first time fully controlled the legislature. Mr. Wheeler was an active member of the Senate during his term of office, and his ability and integrity were so well recognized that his party removed him to a higher sphere of political duty by electing him as their representative to the Thirty-seventh Congress, from the then sixteenth district, comprising the counties of Clinton, Essex and Franklin. Mr. Wheeler proved himself a faithful representative, consistently supporting the Republican party, and aiding in all [illegible] for the suppression of the rebellion. After his term in Congress had expired, Mr. Wheeler retired into private life for four or five years, but in the spring of 1867 he was again called to take an active part in politics. He was elected in April, 1867, a member of the State Constitutional Convention, and at its organization the following June he again received a distinguished mark of public favor by being elected to the position of chairman of the convention. In the fall of 1867 Mr. Wheeler was nominated and elected to the Forty-first Congress from the seventeenth district, comprising Franklin and St. Lawrence counties, and since that date he has sat continuously in Congress up to the present time. In the Forty-first Congress Mr. Wheeler was chairman of the committee on the [illegible]. He also held in the Forty-second Congress, and in the last Congress he was chairman of the committee on appropriations. During the Forty-third Congress, in the winter of 1874, he was, as already stated, appointed chairman of the Congressional committee which went to New Orleans to settle the Vexing questions [illegible] in Louisiana, and it was mainly owing to his exertions that a peaceable [illegible] was obtained, and that what is known as the "Wheeler compromise" was accepted by both parties in the Louisiana legislature. The compromise agreed upon by the committee was adopted in good faith by Republicans and Democrats, peace was restored, and good feeling soon prevailed among all classes of citizens.

THE SEA-SIDE HOUSE,

CLATSOP BEACH,

IS NOW OPEN FOR THE RECEPTION OF VISITORS.

J. C. OLMSTED.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregonians to repeat here. To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria, on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and Lighthouse, on Baker's Bay, a beautiful sheet of water, unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, its mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrians or walkers is one of the most delightful Panoramas to the eye ever witnessed. The cosy beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens, moist old Tillamook, in the blue distance.

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.

The Salt Water Bathing in the bay, within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf, in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean, from which fishers take from the sea, Bass, Rockfish, Tom Cod, Porgies, etc., etc. Crabs, Clams Oysters, &c., in abundance, (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of those desirable adjuncts.) Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children, Teams to the Weather Beach, Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.

Prices reduced from the old tariff.

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc., for sale at a small profit. Campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer, at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys, attached to the place.

Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells, Fargo & Co's office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs, and more beautiful tracks and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the Landlord has, is that his house is not larger, but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.
